Tojo Hanging Date Closely-Guarded Secret; Wife Pleads For Return Of Premier's Ashes

TOKYO, Nov. 26—Former Premier Hideki Tojo and six other major Japanese war criminals were informed today for the first time that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has rejected appeals to save them from death on the gallows.

A reliable source said the hangings would not occur before Monday.

The Allied commander's decision was announced Wednesday, but the seven doomed men have not been permitted to read any newspapers for the last three days.

Today's unusual activities at Sugamo prison, as observed by reporters standing "death watch" at the prison's gates, had aroused speculation on the possibility that Japan's foremost war criminals were being prepared to hang early tomorrow.

Tonight, however, it seemed likely that the prison activities had some connection with four other and less-ranking Japanese war criminals previously convicted and sentenced to death.

As speculation mounted, MacArthur's headquarters said it would be made known at 7 p.m. (EST) whether the executions of the Tojo group had been carried out.

None except official witnesses will see the grim spectacle of the seven outstanding Japanese war criminals mounting the gallows to die for aggression and crimes against humanity. The world will be told of the historic event only after the executions have been completed and the bodies cremated.

Meanwhile, Madam Katsuko Tojo, wife of Japan's Pearl Harbor premier, appealed to MacArthur to let her have the ashes of her husband.

Mme. Tojo's letter was delivered to MacArthur by her husband's defense attorney, George Blewett of Philadelphia. In it she wrote:

"As a member of a warrior's family, I do not have the slightest regret about the termination of my husband's public career by execution of the death sentence."

"Respect for the remains of the dead is not only an Oriental custom but constitutes one of the strictest commandments of Buddhism."

"It is my heartfelt desire to take delivery of my husband's remains and bury them with a sense of veneration in conformity with Japanese customs and religious precepts, hoping for the happiness and repose of his soul."

Meanwhile, a 24-year-old insurance salesman, Shimpachiro Kobayashi, said he had collected 2,000 signatures on Tokyo's street to a petition, imploring MacArthur to return the remains of the doomed men to their families. Kobayashi said:

"Dead bodies aren't criminals."

CIO Demands 4th Pay Hike Without Increase In Prices

PORLTAND, Ore., Nov. 26—The Congress of Industrial Organizations called today for a fourth round of wage increases without price boosts as delegates prepared to reelect President Philip Murray.

Adjournment was expected before nightfall as the 700 delegates to the organization's 10th convention began casting ballots for officers. Murray is virtually assured of reelection.

Walter Reuther, fiery president of the United Auto Workers and considered the second most powerful man in the CIO, expressed support for Murray before the convention opened.

Delegates yesterday demanded "ever-increasing" wages without price boosts as a spokesman for the UAW served notice that his union will demand a "fourth round" of pay increases.

AN EXPECTED leftwing resolution on wages was not introduced.

The convention declared:

"It is possible for wages to increase within the framework of a reasonable profit structure for American industry."

The "fourth round" warning was voiced by Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the UAW, who declared five automobile companies raised prices almost five times as much as the last wage increase made necessary.

Convention observers predicted all officers will be reelected handily, with the possible exception of Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the Electrical Workers and one of nine CIO vice-presidents.

Many rightwingers have considered Fitzgerald a leader of the "leftwing."

He has made only one speech at this convention, and then he denounced Russian activities but opposed a resolution to reject a third party, criticize Henry Wallace's third party movement and pledge the Political Action Committee to follow its present policies.

The convention, in two hours on Thanksgiving Day passed 18 resolutions unanimously. In them the labor organization demands:

1. A share for organized labor in planning the policies of "basic and monopolistic" industries.

2. More federal activity to provide housing and stricter rent controls.

3. Guaranteed yearly wages, or as a partial step, guaranteed minimum weekly wages.

4. Rebuilding of the American

East, West Coast Agreements Ahead

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Merchant ships and passenger liners made preparations today to sail from eastern seaports as soon as longshoremen ratify a new agreement that will settle the 17-day-old strike.

Federal mediators, the New York Shippers Association and International Longshoremen's Association officials predicted that the membership will accept the new terms.

Rank-and-file members will vote on the new contract terms Saturday.

If the terms are accepted, longshoremen probably will return to work Monday to end the paralyzing strike that has crippled Atlantic seaboard shipping from Halifax, N.S., to Hampton Roads, Va.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco an agreement on terms for the settlement of the 86-day walkout of the CIO longshoremen's union has been reached with a membership vote also expected Saturday.

A Navy spokesman said the gun represents the first use of cannon power to propel guided missile warheads. Up to now, the robot projectiles and their components have been powered strictly by jet and rocket force, although bombs have long been test-fired by guns.

HIGHLIGHTS of the West Coast pact are a 15-cent hourly wage increase, a three-year contract, improved grievance machinery.

Navy Shows 24-Inch Gun

Unit To Launch Guided Missiles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—The Navy disclosed today that it has developed a new 24-inch gun, largest in the world, to fire bombs and guided missile warheads at supersonic speeds.

The gun has been put into operation at the naval proving ground, Dahlgren, Va., shooting bomb and warheads up to 2,000 pounds against armor plate and concrete targets.

The Navy said the firings will enable it to measure the effect of such an impact on these weapons and expand research work in the field of ordnance testing.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 26—A University of Kentucky campus policeman was shot and killed with his own pistol by a son even as two Lexington police cruisers rushed to the scene to break up a family quarrel.

A Lexington desk sergeant said two city cruisers were within a minute of arriving at the home of Thomas J. Turner, 46, last night when Turner's 18-year-old son, Donald B. Turner, turned the officer's own service weapon on his father.

The police were answering a call from the victim's wife, Mrs. Turner, that her husband was drunk and threatening her and the family and the older boy had interceded.

A few moments after the first call, she telephoned again for the officers to "hurry." She said that her son had his father's pistol and then added:

"It's too late now—he (her husband) is already shot."

Police who entered the home a moment later rushed Turner to a hospital but he died a few minutes afterward.

Ten of those scheduled for execution were found guilty of committing concentrated camp atrocities. The remaining five were convicted of killing American fliers who parachuted into Germany when their planes were destroyed.

Authorities said they would question Walker about the slaying of Miss Elizabeth Short, the "Black Dahlia," in Los Angeles in January, 1947.

Soviet Bloc's Marshall Plan Killer Defeated

PARIS, Nov. 26—A Soviet-backed resolution aimed at disrupting the Marshall Plan was defeated in the United Nations.

The proposal, introduced by Poland on behalf of the Soviet bloc, would have condemned "international trade discrimination for political purposes."

The six eastern bloc nations voted affirmatively in the General Assembly, but there were eight abstentions.

Poland's resolution was introduced after the U.S. warned that it may refuse to ship to Russia and her satellites materials which can be used "for building up military potential."

The warning was issued by Willard Thorp, State Department economic expert, in the General Assembly. Thorp declared:

"Our export control policy arises from considerations of national security."

"The right of governments to prohibit or restrict goods for the direct or indirect use of foreign military establishments is generally recognized."

"Concern of free countries everywhere has been repeatedly expressed over the aggressive words, policies, and actions of Russia and other eastern states dominated by the Soviet Union."

Solons Propose Cut In 'Nuisance' Excise Taxes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Tax relief in the form of reduced "nuisance" excise levies loomed as a possibility today.

Rep. Forand, (D) R.I., and Eberhardt, (D) Pa., both members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, revealed they will launch a drive in the next Congress to cut these taxes which still are at their wartime peak.

The two congressmen said they will support a "limited" excess profits tax to raise enough revenue to offset the proposed cut in excise levies.

Forand and Eberhardt declared that the excise taxes should be slashed on such products and services as cosmetics, telegraph messages, long distance telephone calls, jewelry, electric light bulbs, luggage and transportation.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 26—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson charged today that Gov. Thomas J. Herbert had abandoned his duties in his failure to remove Simon L. Leis, of Cincinnati, as member of the state liquor control board.

Ferguson had removed Leis from the state payroll, charging that he vacated his liquor board position when he defended Mrs. Mary Clay Watts in her recent Cincinnati first-degree murder trial.

At that time Herbert commented that "the frothings of little Joe never bothered me."

Ferguson contends that "Ohio law states that a liquor board member must devote his entire time to the duties of his office."

Kerosene Blast Starts Fatal Blaze

Father, 2 Children Lost In Flames

A traditional Thanksgiving celebration Thursday ended in tragedy for one Pickaway County family.

Ralph T. Seymour, 42, of near Five Points, and his two children, Dean, 7, and Gloria Jean, 5, perished in flames after returning from a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Seymour of Mt. Sterling.

Only survivor in the family of four was the mother, Mrs. Harriet Seymour, 29, who was reported "fair" in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, Friday.

She was suffering from shock and minor burns.

The three members of the family were burned to death when a kerosene explosion enveloped the home in flames.

They had been home only a few minutes, according to reports, when Seymour attempted to rekindle the coal-burning heating stove with kerosene from a large can.

THE MOTHER was in the kitchen preparing an evening meal while the children remained in the front room with their father.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, investigating the mishap, said the stove apparently contained a few live coals. When the father sloshed the kerosene, the whole house caught fire and exploded, covering him and the children with flames, Radcliff reported.

The mother, hearing the explosion, apparently investigated but the searing heat drove her screaming out the rear door of the home.

The children's bodies were not recovered until the flames had died down.

SHERIFF Radcliff said the Mt. Sterling fire department "did a fine job, but the house was too far gone when they arrived." It was the only department summoned.

Pickaway County Coroner Dr. Lloyd Jones stated Friday he had returned a verdict of "accidental death."

Seymour was employed by the Capital City Products Co. in Columbus.

The eight-room frame Seymour home was owned by Thomas Lane, neighboring farmer. The house was destroyed.

Surviving Seymour, in addition to his widow and parents, are: two sisters, Mrs. Viola Chapman of Columbus and Mrs. Ruth Stewart of Mt. Sterling; and four brothers, Russell of Grove City, Otto of Mt. Sterling, Dean of Columbus and Wayne of Canton. Funeral arrangements are being completed by the Snyder funeral home of Mt. Sterling.

Drunken Driver Gets 60-Day Term In Jail

Jesse Eby, 41, of Lover's Lane, was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in Pickaway County jail in mayor's court Wednesday for drunken driving.

Eby had been fined for drunken driving in November 1946, when involved in an accident which later proved fatal to Fred Griner. Following Griner's death Eby was indicted for manslaughter, pled guilty in common pleas court, and was handed a five-year parole, driving rights suspended.

He was arrested last week on U.S. Route 23 by State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells.

resignation occurred at approximately the same time.

Both came almost immediately after the Chinese Communists completed their conquest of rich Manchuria and moved into their present offensive against Suchow, communications key to the Nanking-Shanghai area.

A powerful Nationalist army meantime drove north from re-captured Sunhsien in an attempt to crack the middle of the Communists assault on Suchow.

The Communists however claimed to have overrun another to life imprisonment, charged that acArthur had exceeded his authority in refusing to return the ashes of the doomed men to their families.

The attorney charged that the refusal to return the remains to the families not only constitutes a "violation of property right but amounts to increasing the severity of the sentences."

Notwithstanding these appeals and criticisms, it was learned that preparations were being made to dispose of the bodies secretly.

They will be trucked 25 miles to a crematorium south of Yokohama where all Japanese war criminals are cremated after execution.

The establishment is operated by a Japanese, but the cremations of the bodies of the seven leading war criminals will be performed by soldiers of the American Army's Graves Registration Service. The bodies will be moved to the crematorium under heavy guard.

Previous executions of lesser-ranking Japanese have been conducted at Sugamo on Saturday mornings between the hours of midnight and 4 a.m.

All of the 31 hangings so far carried out on the four-trap gallows in Sugamo's bleak courtyard have occurred between those hours on Saturday.

When the Buddhist Priest Hanayama entered the prison today he told reporters:

"It's a routine visit I make every Friday or Saturday."

Hours afterwards however, the priest had not yet emerged from the prison, indicating he was administering final rites to some condemned men. Whether these were members of the Tojo group or the four less important war criminals doomed to hang could not be ascertained.

Burial was to have been made Friday in Springfield.

Parables Illustrated Bible Messages

JESUS TELLS STORIES TO EXPLAIN HIS TEACHING

Scripture—Isaiah 5:1-7; Matthew 18:31-33, 44-46;
Luke 10:25-37; 15:3-32.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

PARABLES ARE short stories told to emphasize a point in instruction. The special point to be accepted may be little obscure to the listeners, but the story makes it clear.

Jesus told many parables—33 of them in the New Testament—most of them found in the gospels of Matthew and Luke. Many mothers and fathers use this story method to help their children understand the right or wrong of conduct. The youngsters remember the tale more vividly than they do the moral lecture, and as most of us are "children of a larger growth," we, too, remember these stories—and we do not miss the lesson; it, too, remains with us.

Many of the people in the crowds that followed Jesus were ignorant men and women, although there were also those who heard Him who were well educated. These were the men who were always trying to trick him into some statement that they could use as an excuse to arrest Him and turn Him over to the authorities.

Such a one was the lawyer who asked Jesus what he should do to inherit eternal life. Jesus' answer, however, frustrated his purpose. Jesus said, "What is written in the law?" The lawyer answered, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." "Thou hast answered right," said Jesus. "This do, and thou shalt live."

Jesus then told the parable of the man who fell among thieves, who robbed and beat him and probably left him for dead. Two "good" churchmen passed him by without more than a glance, but a certain Samaritan (of a race Jews hated) came by, saw the man, bound up his wounds, put him on his own donkey, and took him to the nearest inn, and had him taken care of there.

The lawyer had asked Jesus who was his neighbor, so after telling the parable, Jesus said, "Which of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor to him that fell among thieves?" Of course the lawyer said, "He that showed mercy on him." "Go, and do thou likewise," was the answer.

UNIFICATION DELAYED?Marine General Unbound
By Army Censorship Rule

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 — The recently-published memoirs of Retired Marine General Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith have caused a storm of controversy late, and there are those who charge that he has harmed the cause of unifying the armed services.

The theory on which such a charge is based is not without merit.

Certainly more heat than light has been placed on the postwar discussions of such bloody battles as Tarawa and Iwo Jima as a result of Smith's somewhat uninhibited public portrayal of his point of view.

Unquestionably certain high-ranking officers in the various service branches have done considerable snarling back and forth in the course of leveling off the controversy.

Nevertheless the controversy may well be the springboard toward a phase of armed forces unification which has not yet been achieved.

In fact, spokesmen within Defense Secretary Forrestal's office say privately that the subject will definitely be settled within the next few days—although it may not be announced for weeks.

It is the question of whether all high military brass, when retired, should be bound by the same "service censorship" rules.

THE PREDICTED answer, at present, is that they all will be. In other words, either all of them will be free to speak their minds, or else all of them will be bound by the orders of their erstwhile service branch.

As the situation now stands, that is not true. A retired Marine general, according to the rules, can speak his mind—in news conferences or in print of his own authorship—a bout almost anything he chooses. The Smith series was a typical example.

A retired Army general, however, can not. He must submit such erstwhile "secret" stuff to the current Army censors for approval. If it is not approved, he is bound by his professional oath, and the regulations of his service career, not to release the blue-pencilled material.

Most drastic example of the Army rule was General Eisenhower's recently-published memoirs. Little mention was made of it.

It may come as a surprise to millions of people, but every line in that book was submitted to the Army authorities for censorship. Ike was bound by the Army rules.

True, in his case, there unquestionably would be a great hesitancy to blue-pencil copy indiscriminately. Nevertheless, it could be—and, in some instances, was—done. In lesser cases, the censorship could well be considered more drastic.

When Retired Marine General Smith cut loose in his series on Pacific battles which he thought were mistakenly ordered, badly planned or inefficiently executed, he did it over the objections of everyone up to, and including, Defense Secretary Forrestal.

Undersecretary of the Navy Kenney said that he had appealed to Smith not to publish his criticisms of either the Saipan or the Iwo Jima campaigns—the latter being the one in which Smith was the most critical of the Navy.

YET HE did not even make that statement until after the Smith stories appeared.

In any case, the point is that he "appealed" to the retired Marine general. Had it been a retired Army general who was releasing formerly "restricted" material, it would not have been an appeal—it would have been an order!

When the controversy finally hit a white heat, the Army took the "restricted" tag off quite a chunk of its records, in order to more effectively disagree with Howling Mad Smith. Here again, however, it did not do so until forced to.

WONDERFUL TOWN

"COME to Bingville, America's Beautiful Blossom." This is the sort of stuff which fills reports of chambers of commerce and state industrial development commissions, says Dr. Robert S. Aries and Dr. Donald F. Othmer of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, addressing the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Sometimes these reports contain more or less irrelevant statistics, which look impressive but are of small value to businessmen who want to know local cost factors before they decide where to set up a plant.

Writing promotional literature is easier than digging up facts, as every public relations worker knows. That may be why in Los Angeles, for instance, where the city is bursting at the seams and many residents are distracted because they cannot find homes, the Chamber of Commerce is busy sending out appeals, "Come Live in Los Angeles." If it did something about the housing situation it would be more useful. Indiscriminate boasting is not the most important function of a civic body.

JUST A WORD

THE choice of a word may make all the difference in the world. Douglas S. Freeman, Richmond, Va., newspaper editor and military historian, whose monumental life of Washington is now beginning to appear, received a letter of thanks from the late President Roosevelt during the war.

This came because Freeman had suggested that the attack on the Nazi European stronghold should be called not the "invasion" of France but its "liberation." It was reasoned that the latter term would make friends for the Allied armies, where the former might arouse suspicions and perhaps downright hostility. To him, "liberation" became the official term.

Words do matter, as every advertiser knows.

Both his admirers and those who disagreed with the late President will recognize that he played a large part in the history of the United States and the world. It is proper to preserve this and his New York home for their historical interest. Americans need to be made more historically minded, and projects such as this will be important contributions.

Railroad Act May Be Model | See Unions Making a Drive For New Labor Legislation | For Retirement Pay Program

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Some union leaders are advocating that labor legislation the administration will seek in January be modeled after the Railway Labor act.

The toughest provision to write in the contemplated substitution for or modification of the Taft-Hartley law will be the section on national emergency strikes.

Labor is dead set against the injunction process of the Taft-Hartley law and the administration shares this opposition.

That is where the Railway Labor act comes into the picture. This law, which applies only to the rail brotherhoods, provides for appointment of presidential emergency boards in a threatened strike and a 60-day cooling off period.

There is no compulsion. Rail unions could strike if they desired. However, they nearly always delay strike action while the board is functioning and more often than not accept its recommendations to end the strike threat entirely.

Administration officials are wondering, however, whether the great mass of unions are mature and responsible enough to follow that procedure. Its success depends on calm, reasoned leadership and well-disciplined membership which strikes only as a last resort.

PRESENT VS. FUTURE—Elsewhere on the labor scene, unions which heretofore stressed immediate cash increases in bargaining for new wage contracts are beginning to talk seriously of old-age benefits instead.

When the fourth round pay boost issue comes up, management may find itself presented with these alternatives:

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

Claude Robinson, president of Opinion Research Corporation, which is the commercial side of the Gallup Poll, puts the Gallup error as follows:

Poll	Latest	Error
Pct.	Pct.	Pct.
Truman	44.5	50.0
Dewey	49.5	45.8
Thurmond	2.0	1.9
Wallace	4.0	2.3

By "latest," he means the vote as recorded on Nov. 4. Perhaps, he hoped, on that day, that it would change perceptibly.

In his report to his customers, Robinson philosophically states:

"All sciences progress by making mistakes. Every doctor and every engineer makes careful studies of his failures in order to find and remove the 'bugs' in technique. The polling experience of 1948 most certainly will make pollers re-examine and improve their methods."

In this he is altogether correct. When a doctor makes a serious mistake, the patient often dies. It may be of some value to the world at large that the doctor writes a learned dissertation on his error for a technical journal, but that does the dead man no good. He is dead.

Similarly when an engineer designs a crazy bridge and it collapses and those upon it are hurled into the river beneath to find a watery grave, it does them no good that he says that if the bridge had been built differently, it would not have collapsed.

The errors of science may be as costly as the errors of nonsense. Doctors' fads have done incalculable damage and some of the peculiarities of statisticians temporarily popular—may do infinite damage. Robinson then makes the point.

"Men of action want answers, not 'whereas' and 'on the other hand.' People in the polling profession must take a stand. In this case, the result was not a happy one."

That puts the "men of action" where? Suppose the results are often bad but are covered up by pseudo-scientific gibberish which misleads. Perhaps, had Dewey ignored them, he would have conducted altogether a different type of campaign. In Ohio, he lost by a hair. How is such a loss explained? Men will argue about it for years yet the fact is that the total vote for Governor was more than 300,000 higher than the total vote for President. Not only did numerous Ohioans stay away from the polls, but more than 300,000 voted for a governor but not for a President. Why? Certainly a "scientific" poll should have discovered that before the election—if there is any science to it at all.

The correct journalistic approach is altogether different from the pollsters. Unless he is one of those prima donnas who projects himself as a news item, the journalist states his case as he sees and believes it on the day he writes. He does not attempt to shake the world by prophecies and predictions. He does not personally make history he only reports history from one man's perspective. He differs from the historian because he writes only for today the historian gathers the items together, compares one with the other, weighs and judges the validity of the account and reaches a conclusion which is revised by other historians.

Plenty of campaign promises were made in the recent weeks, but none mentioned mercy for turkeys at Thanksgiving time.

1—Grant an outright pay hike to meet the continuing rise in the cost of living.

2—Or set up a retirement payment plan for workers who reach 60 or 65 years of age.

Maybe labor will seek a combination of these points, but one thing is certain: It is going to insist this year more than ever before on retirement benefits.

The CIO's union news service gives top editorial play to this theme. It points out that a number of member unions already are taking the problem on the theory that workers "have as much right to bargain for their future as for the present."

SENATOR TAFT'S PROSPECTS—Ohio political experts say that Senator Robert A. Taft, Senate GOP policy leader, would have been defeated if he had been up for re-election Nov. 2.

Many strong Dewey backers are blaming Taft for the New York governor's failure to carry Ohio. They say the Taft-Hartley Act tilted industrial Ohio against the Dewey-Warren ticket, and that Taft's speeches did not help. A Cincinnati politician said:

"The big unions naturally opposed Taft, and the more conservative workers who generally have gone GOP in Ohio, would not swallow Taft at this time."

Taft comes up for re-election in 1950. By that time the pendulum may have swerved.

FEUDING CABINET MEMBERS—Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer and Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan, who have never agreed on how much wheat the United States could afford to ship to Europe, are swinging statistics at each other again.

Sawyer plausibly observed in a recent New York speech that wheat exports in the next year should be held to 400 million bushels, although he said they might go up to 425 million bushels if domestic consumption is held to 700 million bushels.

Brannan and his aides contend that 450 million bushels should be the minimum export goal, and that it might go higher, possibly up to 525 million bushels.

Moreover, they think Sawyer should stay in his own bailiwick. He has aroused the farm belt's ire by suggesting that the government might be a little cautious in supporting farm prices.

One question connected therewith is whether Sawyer will remain in the president's cabinet during his second term. Brannan did a lot of campaigning for his chief and Sawyer was quiet.

How Doctors Treat Clicking Sensation in the Jaw Joint

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A GREAT many people occasionally notice clicking in the jaw joint and sometimes feel as if it were going to lock during a yawn. Ordinarily, this is not a serious condition, but in some instances it becomes so severe that the mouth cannot be opened wide enough for normal eating. In other patients, the jaw may lock when the mouth is opened, while for still others the audible clicking of the jaw at every movement is the most annoying feature of the trouble.

Whether mild and occasional or constant and severe, the cause of this disorder is always the same—a derangement of the cartilage disc between the bone surfaces which form the joint between the upper and lower jaws. Usually, this consists of loosening or enlargement of the disc.

Slight Injury

Some slight injury to the joint, such as might be inflicted by too wide a yawn, may precede the development of the condition. A blow on the joint may have the same result, but most cases can be traced either to the extraction of teeth or a natural malocclusion or impingement. This causes long-continued strain which gradually brings about changes in the cartilage. In case of sudden injury, the cartilage is loosened and thereafter the repeated twisting and snapping involved in ordinary movements of the jaw cause the cartilage to enlarge, with the result that symptoms are made worse.

In treating this disorder, if the bite is not proper, it should be corrected. If an injury has occurred recently, splinting of the joint for a time may allow the condition to clear up without becoming chronic or long-continued.

In those cases in which pain is present, the use of heat, such as heat produced by a short-wave diathermy machine, may bring marked benefit.

Operation Needed

None of these treatments will correct the condition if the cartilage is either too large or too loose. In such cases, an operation is necessary. During the operation, the cartilage is removed.

After the operation the jaw is kept immovable and only fluids are given for five days. After this time, movements of the jaw may be gradually permitted.

In those cases in which the only symptom is clicking in the joint, operation is, as a rule, not needed. However, at times the clicking may be so bothersome to the patient that removal of the cartilage is advisable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. N.: My wife has enlarged glands in the neck. Some years ago she had tuberculosis. Could tuberculosis be the cause for the condition?

A. Answer: It is possible that the enlarged glands are due to tuberculous infection. On the other hand, it may be due to infection of the throat, nose, and mouth. The condition might also be due to some disorder affecting the blood.

A careful study of the lungs is advisable. It may be necessary to remove a bit of tissue from one of the glands to examine under the microscope.

In treating this disorder, if the bite is not proper, it should be corrected. If an injury has occurred recently, splinting of the joint for a "Okay, Mark. I hope the daughter has a foul disposition and scratches your eyes out. Be seeing you."

At dinner at home on Saturday she announced, with cheerful venom, that Mark Banister, the louse, was "podnering" on Christmas Day but that he would be on hand to help trim the tree on Christmas Eve. Her parents, unaccountably depressed, were not responsive either to her assumption of venom or of cheer.

"What would you think of asking Annette and Davie over to spend the night and all the holiday with us? We can ask her mother, too. And we can hang a stocking here for Davie. Children are so cheerful to have around the house at Christmas."

Donna and her father agreeing with somewhat exaggerated enthusiasm, Mrs. Colwell went at once to the telephone to convey the invitation.

"Mother Colwell," Annette said briskly, "are you all there? Dad and Anna, too? Mind if I run over a few minutes? I want to talk about Christmas."

"The big unions naturally opposed Taft, and the more conservative workers, who generally have gone GOP in Ohio, would not swallow Taft at this time."

Taft comes up for re-election in 1950. By that time the pendulum may have swerved.

FEUDING CABINET MEMBERS—Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer and Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan, who have never agreed on how much wheat the United States could afford to ship to Europe, are swinging statistics at each other again.

Sawyer plausibly observed in a recent New York speech that wheat exports in the next year should be held to 400 million bushels, although he said they might go up to 425 million bushels if domestic consumption is held to 700 million bushels.

Brannan and his aides contend that 450 million bushels should be the minimum export goal, and that it might go higher, possibly up to 525 million bushels.

Moreover, they think Sawyer should stay in his own gallows.

He has aroused the farm belt's ire by suggesting that the government might be a little cautious in supporting farm prices.

One question connected therewith is whether Sawyer will remain in the president's cabinet during his second term. Brannan did a lot of campaigning for his chief and Sawyer was quiet.

How Doctors Treat Clicking Sensation in the Jaw Joint

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A GREAT many people occasionally notice a clicking in the jaw joint and sometimes feel as if it were going to lock during a yawn. Ordinarily, this is not a serious condition, but in some instances it becomes so severe that the mouth cannot be opened wide enough for normal eating. In other patients, the jaw may lock when the mouth is opened, while for still others the audible clicking of the jaw at every movement is the most annoying feature of the trouble.

Whether mild or occasional or constant and severe, the cause of this disorder is always the same—a derangement of the cartilage disc between the bone surfaces which form the joint between the upper and lower jaws. Usually, this consists of loosening or enlargement of the disc.

Slight Injury

Some slight injury to the joint, such as might be inflicted by too wide a yawn, may precede the development of the condition. A blow on the joint may have the same result, but most cases can be traced either to the extraction of teeth or a natural malocclusion or improper bite. This causes long-continued strain which gradually brings about changes in the cartilage. In case of sudden injury, the cartilage is loosened and thereafter the repeated twisting and snapping involved in ordinary movements of the jaw cause the cartilage to enlarge, with the result that symptoms are made worse.

In treating this disorder, if the bite is not proper, it should be corrected. If an injury has occurred recently, splinting of the joint for a time may allow the condition to clear up without becoming chronic or long-continued.

In those cases in which pain is present, the use of heat, such as heat produced by using a short-wave diathermy machine, may bring marked benefit.

Operation Needed

None of these treatments will correct the condition if the cartilage is either too large or too loose. In such cases, an operation is necessary. During the operation, the cartilage is removed.

After the operation the jaw is kept immovable and only fluids are given for five days. After this time, movements of the jaw may be gradually permitted.

In those cases in which the only symptom is clicking in the joint, operation is, as a rule, not needed. However, at times the clicking may be so bothersome to the patient that removal of the cartilage is advisable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. N.: My wife has enlarged glands in the neck. Some years ago she had tuberculosis. Could tuberculosis be the cause for the condition?

Answer: It is possible that the enlarged glands are due to tuberculosis infection. On the other hand, it may be due to infection of the throat, nose, and mouth. The condition might also be due to some disorder affecting the blood.

A careful study of the lungs is advisable. It may be necessary to remove a bit of tissue from one of the glands to examine under the microscope.

President Truman could give thanks this year for getting into the White House... then getting out again before it fell down.

None knows exactly what weakened the building. Democrats say it was the tipped building was unsafe.

But it makes a nice alibi for the losers. Now they're claiming they really didn't try to get into the White House because the they were tipped the building was unsafe.

Anyway the President now has two legs on the turkey and one more will give him permanent possession.

I understand that when Harry stuck his fork in the bird and said "I think he's done" the turkey sat up and said "you all people to say that?"

The dressing was made by the President's own cook. A Republican promise to deliver it this month did not materialize.

and we need a chance to get acquainted. You know we love you, Annette. We want you to be happy. You and Davie."

"I liked him very much, Annette," Donna said helpfully. "He made a grand impression on every one. Mark thinks he's great and you know what a fuss-budget Mark is. Our whole crowd is really interested, Annette, and it's not just nosy interest either. It's because you're part of us and if you want Paul Acheson he's got to put up with the rest of us."

"Thanks, Donna," Annette flashed her a grateful smile. "He liked everybody up here, too. You know how much it means to me." She paused and then went on determinedly. "This is not easy. When we are married, Paul wants to spend the night and all the holiday with us? We can ask her mother, too. And we can hang a stocking here for Davie. Children are so cheerful to have around the house at Christmas."

Donna and her father agreeing with somewhat exaggerated enthusiasm, Mrs. Colwell went at once to the telephone to convey the invitation.

"Mother Colwell," Annette said briskly, "are you all there? Dad and Donna, too? Mind if I run over a few minutes? I want to talk about Christmas."

"The same. Aren't we still friends, Mark?"

"We couldn't possibly be enemies, could we?"

"I said friends."

"What I feel is not friendship, Donna. It isn't immoral, either. Probably after I get over feeling the way I feel now, it will be well, one thing or the other."

"Mark, you're spending Christmas with us, aren't you? You always spend Christmas with us."

"Not this year, Donna. So sorry, says he. Well, we can't blame him. He's probably a better person."

"More than to be expected," Mr. Colwell said reasonably. "If the young man is all he appears to be, it is greatly to be desired. And approved."

"Yes, I suppose so. Yes, of course."

Annette was pale but her confident self-possession belied her youth.

"About Christmas, Mother Colwell," she said. "Of course we will come for the tree on Christmas morning but we cannot spend the entire holiday. Paul Acheson is going to be with us. His family lives in the West and he cannot take time off for the long trip. So he is coming up with us."

"Bring him along, Annette. There's plenty of room. We'll enjoy having him."

"Will you, Mother Colwell? Are you sure? Not for Christmas Eve but for the tree and Christmas dinner. If you're very sure you want him."

Household Hints

If your biscuits burn on the bottom but remain pale on top, your baking sheet may be too large. This tends to hold the heat from the burner to the bottom instead of radiating around the oven evenly. There should be at least one inch of space between the baking sheets and all four sides of the oven.

Cups set two deep on a narrow shelf are easier to get out and put away. If you hang cups on hooks in the cupboards, they are likely to get bumped and chipped.

Trumanites Urged Grab Controls Dixiecrat-GOP Coalition Looms

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 — A Democratic leader has proposed that President Truman's supporters be given a commanding voice in congressional committees to assure a "sympathetic" reception for his legislative program.

The proposal was advanced by Rep. Forand of Rhode Island, chairman of the House Democratic caucus and a member of the Democratic committee on committees which will fill committee posts.

Forand told reporters that "we've got to rebuild a majority in each committee so that it will go along with the President's program." He added:

"We ought to see to it that the additional members who go on are sympathetic to the President's program."

Democratic representation will be enlarged on all committees when the Republicans relinquish control Jan. 3. Democratic members who were re-elected largely will retain their old posts, but many new members will have to be added.

There has been conjecture on Capitol Hill over whether Southern Democrats who are not sympathetic to the President's legislative program again will be able to control committees through a coalition with Republicans.

THIS SITUATION prevailed in 1945 and 1946 before Republicans took complete control.

Forand said the Democrats may have to enlarge the rules committee to assure the administration a majority over any possible Dixiecrat-Republican coalition.

To assure administration control, he added, the committee's present membership of 12 might have to be increased to 15. This key committee, which clears legislation to the floor for a vote, will be headed by Rep. Sabath, (D) Ill., a strong administration supporter.

King George's Health Never Has Been Robust

LONDON, Nov. 26—A lifelong royal battle against poor health has reached its climax in Buckingham Palace and the British Commonwealth turned from rejoicing over birth of a baby prince to pray that his kingly grandfather will recover from a serious illness.

Announcement that King George has been invalided by a circulatory affliction which has affected his right foot recalled the struggle he waged all his life against a frail constitution.

It is a matter of record that this immensely popular monarch's boyhood though happy, was not healthy.

He never expected to be king. For no one dreamed that his elder brother, Edward, would abdicate and retire to married life as the Duke of Windsor. This probably played a major role in his ability to concentrate on sports and exercise which ultimately enabled him to build the strength required for the manifold duties of kingship.

IN LAST 16 MONTHS... MORE MEN VOLUNTEERED FOR THE ARMY than chose jobs in any other business

HERE'S THE RECORD

Between July 1, 1947, and October 21, 1948, a total of 214,616 forward-looking young American men signed original enlistment contracts with the U. S. Army. This number is greater than the number of men who obtained jobs with any other American business during the same period.

During this sixteen-month period the total of all enlistments in your U. S. Army amounted to 341,959. Of this group, 93,473 veterans returned to the Army—men who had discovered that the U. S. Army offered them more than civilian life. And in the same period 33,870 men re-enlisted to continue their satisfying, productive Army careers.

Thousands upon thousands of intelligent young men are finding worth-while, remunerative and satisfying careers in the Army. And every day more men are taking advantage of the unlimited opportunities the Army offers—opportunities that can't be duplicated in civilian life.

For instance, in the month of August, 1948, alone, 44,204 signed enlistment contracts of three years or more with the Army.

Today fifty-seven per cent of the volunteers in the Army have had previous military service—enjoyable, happy service which they want to continue.

This impressive record is solid, conclusive proof that the Regular U. S. Army offers the kind of career opportunity that the young men of our nation demand—an opportunity not only to learn but to serve at the same time.

WHY MEN RE-ENLIST

Ranking high among the reasons thousands of men give for selecting or continuing careers in the Army are the chances for rapid advancement in their chosen fields. Today the Army is expanding fast. This expansion means unlimited opportunity for promotion of skilled, highly trained men.

Advancement is important; however, there are many other good, sound reasons why so many intelligent men choose to stay in the Army. Here are but a few:

- ★ On the day a man enlists the Army starts a retirement-benefit "stake" for him which continues to grow as long as he stays. At the end of six years he has established an equity which compares with a retirement benefit of $6,250.
- ★ Army technical schools offer the most advanced and specialized training in interesting, practical fields—give technical "know-how" you'd have to pay for in civilian life.

THE NEW ARMY AND AIR FORCE OFFER...
★ WIDEST CHOICE OF CAREER JOBS
★ BEST OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVANCEMENT
★ UNUSUAL RETIREMENT BENEFITS

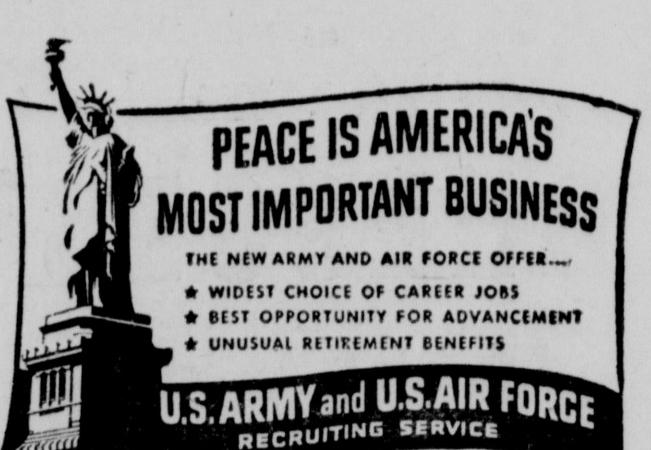

HERE'S WHAT THE NEW ARMY OFFERS YOU

Before you choose any career, compare it with a future in the Regular U. S. Army. Never before has the Army offered such tremendous opportunities for a real career to the alert, ambitious young men of America.

On the one hand you have the chance to serve your country while learning a new trade or skill—to further your education in important fields. And on the other hand there are the financial advantages, the job security, the retirement benefits, the chances for rapid promotion, the free medical and dental care that are yours in the Army.

A career in the U. S. Army is an opportunity that just can't be beat. And it's a lifetime opportunity! Get the full details now at your nearest U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Office.

Slag Said Sub For Limestone

Wooster Experts Make Experiment

WOOSTER, Nov. 26—In testing the value of blast furnace slags as liming materials to meet the ever-increasing needs of lime for Ohio's acid soils, yields of mixed hay have been increased materially by using fine water-granulated slag on Wooster silt loam.

Dr. C. E. Evans, of the department of agronomy of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, is reporting results of numerous laboratory and greenhouse experiments and states that both water-granulated and air-cooled types of slags were compared with a limestone of comparable chemical composition.

Yields of mixed hay were increased as much as 46 percent by an addition of three tons of lime per acre on Wooster silt loam. Such increases were obtained only when the more finely ground grades (Agricultural meal or ground) of limestone or water-granulated slag were used.

Air-cooled slag of a similar fineness increased yields about 35 percent. Although application of a coarser grade (screenings) of limestone, water-granulated slag, or air-cooled slag improved hay yields, the increases were not nearly as great as when the finer materials were used.

IN TESTS of neutralization rate of soil acidity, Dr. Evans reports, water-granulated and air-cooled slags and limestone were fractionated into particle size groups and applied at equivalent rates to pots containing Wooster silt loam.

The coarser fractions (20 mesh or larger) of both slags and of limestone had little or no effect upon reducing soil acidity, even after contact with the soil for 18 months.

In contrast, the fine fractions (100 mesh) of all liming materials showed marked effects in correcting soil acidity after as little as two weeks contact with the soil.

In every case, the efficiency of each material in correcting soil acidity progressively increases as the size of lime particles becomes smaller.

Considering equivalent size fractions water-granulated slag is comparable to lime-cooled slag in correcting soil acidity.

Both the field and laboratory results emphasize the greater effectiveness of the finer grades of slags and limestone over the coarser materials.

Furthermore, the blast furnace slags, especially the water-granulated type, can be used as an effective liming material on the acid soils of Ohio providing the material is ground to a small size. The project work was supported in part by a grant-in-aid from the National Slag Association.

LEPER INCIDENT CITED

Cleric Cautions Listeners Be Active In 'Thanks'

Whether Thanksgiving is "active or passive" was the subject of an address Wednesday evening at Circleville's union Thanksgiving service.

Speaker was the Rev. James Herbst, pastor of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church.

Speaking before a near-capacity audience in First EUB church, Rev. Mr. Herbst cautioned his listeners to be more active in thanksgiving to God.

A resume of Rev. Mr. Herbst's address follows:

In the gospel of Luke there is an incident in the life of Jesus Christ which is the basis for this tude, but continued on their way.

THIS INCIDENT is typical of the attitudes of mankind today. Especially as a nation we are in a time of abundance and prosperity which ultimately has its source in God.

We came out of the last war unscathed as a country; this year we have had bumper crops; practically full employment is all about us and most items are now available on the open market and yet how large of a percentage have in any way given God any recognition in the activity of their lives as the one to whom we should all be grateful and thankful for that which we have.

Too many of us receive, are grateful, but passively accept God's goodness as did the nine without any return in an active way of our gratitude to God.

The origin of Thanksgiving was based upon the act of the Pilgrim Fathers who gave thanks to God for the abundant harvest. They did so by prayer and praise and giving Him a place in their hearts and lives. The call on this

Thanksgiving eve is to the true meaning of Thanksgiving.

Let us cease being so much like the nine lepers, but rather follow the path of the one by actively giving thanks unto God, attendance at worship in our churches, a recognition of him in our homes and in the program of our entire lives.

The question that we should all face is, "What is my expression of thanksgiving to God? Is it active or passive?"

Let us determine to become more active in our expression of thanks unto God this Thanksgiving day and throughout the coming year.

Slag Said Sub For Limestone

Wooster Experts Make Experiment

WOOSTER, Nov. 26—In testing the value of blast furnace slags as liming materials to meet the ever-increasing needs of lime for Ohio's acid soils, yields of mixed hay have been increased materially by using fine water-granulated slag on Wooster silt loam.

Dr. C. E. Evans, of the department of agronomy of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, is reporting results of numerous laboratory and greenhouse experiments and states that both water-granulated and air-cooled types of slags were compared with a limestone of comparable chemical composition.

Yields of mixed hay were increased as much as 46 percent by an addition of three tons of lime per acre on Wooster silt loam. Such increases were obtained only when the more finely ground grades (Agricultural meal or ground) of limestone or water-granulated slag were used.

Air-cooled slag of a similar fineness increased yields about 35 percent. Although application of a coarser grade (screenings) of limestone, water-granulated slag, or air-cooled slag improved hay yields, the increases were not nearly as great as when the finer materials were used.

IN TESTS of neutralization rate of soil acidity, Dr. Evans reports, water-granulated and air-cooled slags and limestone were fractionated into particle size groups and applied at equivalent rates to pots containing Wooster silt loam.

The coarser fractions (20 mesh or larger) of both slags and of limestone had little or no effect upon reducing soil acidity, even after contact with the soil for 18 months.

In contrast, the fine fractions (100 mesh) of all liming materials showed marked effects in correcting soil acidity after as little as two weeks contact with the soil.

In every case, the efficiency of each material in correcting soil acidity progressively increases as the size of lime particles becomes smaller.

Considering equivalent size fractions water-granulated slag is comparable to lime-cooled slag in correcting soil acidity.

Both the field and laboratory results emphasize the greater effectiveness of the finer grades of slags and limestone over the coarser materials.

Furthermore, the blast furnace slags, especially the water-granulated type, can be used as an effective liming material on the acid soils of Ohio providing the material is ground to a small size. The project work was supported in part by a grant-in-aid from the National Slag Association.

LEPER INCIDENT CITED

Cleric Cautions Listeners Be Active In 'Thanks'

Whether Thanksgiving is "active or passive" was the subject of an address Wednesday evening at Circleville's union Thanksgiving service.

Speaker was the Rev. James Herbst, pastor of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church.

Speaking before a near-capacity audience in First EUB church, Rev. Mr. Herbst cautioned his listeners to be more active in thanksgiving to God.

A resume of Rev. Mr. Herbst's address follows:

In the gospel of Luke there is an incident in the life of Jesus Christ which is the basis for this Thanksgiving message. Jesus is met, while on the way to Jerusalem by ten men who had leprosy. They cried out to Jesus to heal them, and he told them to go show themselves to the priest and they would be healed.

As they were on their way to the priest they were healed of their leprosy. One of them, when he saw that he was healed returned to express his gratitude and thankfulness to Jesus Christ, while the other nine, although they were probably thankful in their hearts, gave no outward or active expression to this gratitude, but continued on their way.

THIS INCIDENT is typical of the attitudes of mankind today. Especially as a nation we are in a time of abundance and prosperity which ultimately has its source in God.

We came out of the last war unscathed as a country; this year we have had bumper crops; practically full employment is all about us and most items are now available on the open market and yet how large of percentage have in any way given God any recognition in the activity of their lives as the one to whom we should all be grateful and thankful for that which we have.

Too many of us receive, are grateful, but passively accept God's goodness as did the nine without any return in an active way of our gratitude to God.

The origin of Thanksgiving was based upon the act of the Pilgrim Fathers who gave thanks to God for the abundant harvest. They did so by prayer and praise and giving Him a place in their hearts and lives. The call on this

Thanksgiving eve is to the true meaning of Thanksgiving.

Let us cease being so much like the nine lepers, but rather follow the path of the one by actively giving thanks unto God, attendance at worship in our churches, a recognition of him in our homes and in the program of our entire lives.

The question that we should all face is, "What is my expression of thanksgiving to God? Is it active or passive?"

Let us determine to become more active in our expression of thanks unto God this Thanksgiving day and throughout the coming year.

WALNUT SURPRISES SCIOTO

Circleville Hands 32-24
Loss To Pickaway Alumni

Circleville grads claimed top berth in the Pickaway County Alumni basketball league Thursday night by besting Pickaway 32-24 in Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Both teams had been tied for leadership of the league going into the Thursday tilt, both having won three games in as many starts this season.

In other league games Thursday, New Holland lifted itself from a tie in the cellar spot by trimming Jackson 40-26; Walnut pulled a surprised Scioto team down near the middle of the league standings by chalking a 21-18 upset over them; and, by virtue of other league defeats, Monroes edged into a tie for second place by posting a 27-17 win over Williamsport.

In the first half of the Circleville-Pickaway game, the CHS'ers barely led the Pirate quintet, posting a 12-11 lead at halftime. However, the second half showed the Circleville grads in front all the way, netting 20 points in the last frame while allowing its opponent but 13.

BIG BILL WELLER of Circleville was high scorer in the fracas, laying up 11 markers from his pivot post. Bob Rhoads of Pickaway was second high in the match with a total of nine.

In the New Holland-Jackson fracas, Jim McGowan of the Bulldog quint furnished the spark to set his team on fire. He dropped in 21 markers to lead in scoring honors. Second place scoring laurels went to his teammate Kenny Pearce who tallied 11, and Ross Bidwell of Jackson ranked third with eight.

Closest game of the evening was the Walnut-Scioto tussle. Walnut trailed the Scioto grads 8-6 at the end of the first half, but pulled ahead in the second half by scoring 15 tallies while holding the Buffalo grads down to 10.

High scorer in the fracas was Emory Fannin of Scioto, who tallied eight, while Darrell Truex, John Brinker and Chester Bumgarner tied for top scoring honors on the Walnut quint with five each.
